STILL "SHOWERS, COOLER"

Weather Forecaster Persists in Optimism and Gives Assurance of Pleasant Saturday.

After a warm, unpleasant night reminded St. Louis how good its weather has been this summer, cooling showers, followed by fair weather, are promised by the Weather Bureau. The official forecast reads:

"Probable showers and cooler tonight. Saturday fair and cooler. Southerly winds, becoming northwesterly."

With a temperature of 75 at 7 a.m., this city passed the warmest night in many days, but the weather man says it is only a hot spell, preceding showers and pleasant coolness.

Just by way of contrast, frost formed in Yellowstone Park last night.

THIEVES GOT
$390 HIDDEN
IN HIS PILLOW

William R. Mudd of Cincinnati Took Unusual Precautions When He Went to Sleep in Hotel on Market Street.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Mudd of Cincinnati came to St. Louis Thursday night. They dreamed of burglars, and when they were awakened at 9 a.m. Friday, he learned that their dream had come true.

Mr. Mudd had heard there were thieves in St. Louis, and when he and his wife went to the Victor Hotel, at 204 Market street, he remembered it.

When he got ready to retire he went to the bed and Mrs. Mudd saw him fooling with the pillow.

"What are you doing there?" she inquired.

"Well, I heard that St. Louis was one of the worse cities in the country for thieves, and I am hiding my money."

Then he opened the pillow slip and placed $390 in currency within the pillow slip.

"Now if they get that they will have to wake me up and I guess they will hardly do that."

"That is a great idea," said Mrs. Mudd. "I guess I will do the same thing with my jewelry."

And she placed her watch and chain and two rings inside the pillow slip of her pillow. Then Mr. and Mrs. Mudd went to sleep and they slept soundly, despite the fact that they dreamed of burglars all night.

Taken From Pillow Slips.

It was 9 o'clock Friday morning when they awoke. Then they saw that they had reason for the precautions they had taken. While they slept someone had entered their room and with a sharp knife had cut the pillow slips and removed Mr. Mudd's $390 in currency and had taken Mrs. Mudd's watch and chain. They overruled two diamond rings that she had also placed in the pillow slip.

The robbery was reported to the police, and the detectives arrested a boy, who were taken to Four Courts and will be held pending a complete investigation.

ST. LOUISAN IS DROWNED.

John Powell's Body Found at Ft. Williams, Ont.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1.—John Powell, aged 23, a seaman from St. Louis, was found dead floating in the water between the pier and the wharf at Fort William, Ont.

Although the exact manner in which he died was not known, it is believed to be the result of an accident.

He worked on the steamer Gladstone at Port Arthur, and it is thought he had been on board the boat when he struck his head against the dock with great force, rendering him unconscious and that he rolled in the river and was drowned.

St. Louis has more Post-Dispatch readers every day than it has homes. "First in everything."

BURNS ALIVE SMALL WITNESS OF HIS THEFT

Fourteen-Year-Old Missouri
Lad Pours Stolen Kerosene
on Smaller Boy and Applies
the Fatal Match.

IS ANGERED AT THREAT TO EXPOSE STEALING

Several Rush to Assistance of Sufferer, but Burns That Completely Divest Him of Clothing Cause Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
HANNIBAL, Mo., Sept. 1.—Louis McLain, the 14-year-old boy who threw gasoline on Charles, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. La. Christian, last evening, and caused him to the boy's clothing, is in the city prison and has not been arraigned as yet.

The deed, which resulted in the death of the little fellow, was in retaliation. McLain is said to have stolen a quart of gasoline from a grocery store and the little Christian boy, who was a more child, threatened to tell the grocer.

McLain replied that he would roast him alive if he did so, and immediately threw the gasoline and touched the match.

His clothing was burned from his body and his body practically roasted from the face to the feet, although assistance came at once. The little sufferer died at 10 o'clock last night in terrible agony. The McLain boy is a waif and has been sleeping in dry goods boxes and similar places.

He made no attempt to escape, and does not appear to realize the enormity of his crime. He has been considered to be partially demented or an imbecile, and it is thought that he cannot be held responsible. It is considered probable that he will be sent to an asylum. Mr. and Mrs. Christian are heart-broken over the tragic death of their little son.

MOTHER TROUBLED BY TRIPLET SONS

She Says Their Fighting Causes Her to Move and Two Are Fired in Court.

Triplet brothers, Robert, Fred and John Andel, aged 22, stood before Judge Spalding in City Hall Police Court Friday morning, charged with disturbing the peace.

The mother of the three, a woman with a kindly face that had been wracked by worry and labor, was on the witness stand.

"I'm sorry, Judge," she said, "but it's nearly all true, all that's been said about the boys. They will only fight. They won't work. Perhaps it's best that they go to the Workhouse."

The testimony had been that Robert and Fred had come home to separate and had come in sight of John, the mother said, had tried to separate them.

In the past year, she said, she had been compelled to move eight times because of the boys' rowdiness. She does not wish to leave her present home, 618 Grand.

The court fined Robert and Fred $5 each and sent them to the Workhouse. John was discharged.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

WALK FROM CITY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 1.—John W. Rogers and wife, who deserted their two pretty children, Rex and Jack, in the Ten Eyck Hotel in Albany last Friday, were in this city, although they have again disappeared. The detectives are hot on their trail and are confident of making the arrests in a short time.

Rogers applied to Dr. W. M. Houghton, of the New England Hospital, for work and made the statement that they had walked from Boston. He was given a place. Dr. Houghton recognized the couple from pictures that had been printed. Rogers confessed after being arrested.

Rogers was told that he must send to Albany for the children. Then he told of obtaining money on a fraudulent check in Albany and he was advised to give himself up. He insisted on being permitted to bid his wife good-by. He left for that purpose and has not since been seen.

The police learned that the couple had taken a trolley car, but they were unable to trace them. Rogers appeared to be in bad shape, as though he had been drinking heavily and did not have the strength to pull himself together.

In Albany the deserted children are great favorites, several well-known women having called to see them. They are exceptionally well-kept boys. A fund has been raised for them.

In the trunk left by Mr. and Mrs. Rogers were a number of photographs of the couple, in some of which he is shown smoking cigarettes and he cigars. Others show them playing cards with dice, with whisky and siphons of water at hand.

Rogers was formerly a Government employee in Washington. It is stated that he got into bad company and that he gradually reached the end of his resources.

Frank and Gertrude Whipple, aged 11 and 9 years respectively, were taken to the quarantining boat Kennedy Friday afternoon and will remain five days unless a certificate of health arrives from Vicksburg before the time expires.

They were recaptured at their home, 226 Clark avenue, after a two-hour search following their escape from the City Dispensary.

The children arrived at the Dispensary with Health Officer R. E. Owen, who had found them lacking certificates, and were left in the mortuary train to await the coming of Dr. Brooks.

The young fellow, who is only 18 years old, registered at the Holland House of London, England, it is said, and ran up a bill, many of the items being for O. J. O. packages sent to him after he arrived.

THE CONGRESS' HEL

Authorized to Use Panama Canal

By W. E. BROWN
of the Washington Bureau
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The financial situation is in such serious condition that the experts have already begun to lay out what the deficit will be at the end of the fiscal year, the months to which expired yesterday.

Secretary Shaw and Speaker Cannon both of them "star-gazers" of the pronounced type, declared against any effort to change the revenue system of the country for the purpose of raising money, on the grounds that such acts will unseat business.

Secretary Shaw's experts, who are worried about the political end of question, but who deal with the figure as a serious business proposition, assert something must be done, or Treasury will encroach so dangerous near the reserve fund that financiers of the country will take alarm.

These men have estimated the receipts and expenditures based upon conditions for the past two months, find that the deficit at the end of year will be around $50,000,000. It runs along at the rate of $10,000,000 monthly during July and August, but course, that ratio will not be maintained.

At the close of business yesterday deficit amounted to a trifling less than $19,000,000, the expenditure $113,352,736, the receipts $80,783,566. The receipts were $6,000,000 more than they were for same two months last year, and the expenditures $17,000 less and yet the deficit keeps plowing at a steady rate.

At the close of business yesterday working balance of the Treasury approximately $555,000,000, and about same amount deposited in the national banks is available, but to call to this money from the banks would still unseat business and create a financial market, which the Treasury wants to avoid.

Some relief is expected when the new money is issued, but the issue of national bonds to be used as a national bank circulation. If is done these bonds can be sold and the cash taken out of the Treasury cage. It will probably be along in February before this is done.

The couple had made five attempts to secure a marriage license, in Belleville, Edwardsville and East St. Louis, but the objections of the girl's mother prevented success.

CARRIAGE SPILLS PAIR ON HONEYMOON

Scion of Bruno Family Accused of Defrauding Holland
House of Out of $296.

Young Horace A. Bruno, son of H. D. Bruno, Secretary and Treasurer of the Bruno Machine Co. of St. Charles, Mo., arrested in New York Thursday charged with defrauding the Holland House out of $296.63, which he returned to his home while having a vacation in the New York police to that end.

The children arrived at the Dispensary with Health Officer R. E. Owen, who had found them lacking certificates, and were left in the mortuary train to await the coming of Dr. Brooks.

The young fellow, who is only 18 years old, registered at the Holland House of London, England, it is said, and ran up a bill, many of the items being for O. J. O. packages sent to him after he arrived.

While the health officers were engaged with other duties Gertrude proposed to her brother that they go home again, having originally settled there in 1846.

Unobserved, they picked up their grips, walked out the Market street door and stepped on a Laclede car.

Their absence was noticed within a few minutes, but they had told the officers where they lived on Laclede avenue, near Northwest street.

The officers caused Police Officer M. Kelleher to search for two hours before he found them at their home on Clark avenue.

The young man, who is only 18 years old, had left about two weeks ago and that his family was trying to get him back, notwithstanding the fact that he had been beaten by the police.

The young Bruno was held at the Holland House of London, England, it is said, and ran up a bill, many of the items being for O. J. O. packages sent to him after he arrived.

"DUB," A MAN OF DIGNITY

Ex-Gov. Yates' Friends Discover Definition of Appellation Given by Sherman.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Friends of Richard Yates, former Governor, have been investigating the meaning of the word
"dub."

Lieutenant-Governor Lawrence Y.
Sherman, in a recent interview, said that the contest between Cullum and Yates for the senatorship would be a fight between an "antique and a dub."
"Antique" refers to the 70-year-old Sherman, intended to convey some opprobrious meaning. They got a dictionary and found "antique" to mean old,
and "dub" good, antiquated, or in former fashion or style, not modern in character. This did well enough for Cullum, but they could not place the exact meaning of "dub."

"I am afraid it means chump," said
Scott Cowan, grain inspector. But others were more generous.

The word is in the verb, as follows:
"Dub-to invest with any dignity or new character." From this they have figured out that the contest between Cullum and Yates would be a contest between a "pension of genuine dignity and a man invested with dignity."

OMEN WANT TO WED."

erry Well, but if Not, Marry Anyhow," Is Woman's Motto, Says Johann.

al to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—"Yes, I've read it this Whizhoff," said Johann Hoch, "and about the thousand women charged with marrying and dying.

don't believe it. The papers are lying like they did Johann. They are a big fuss over very little. If he had to marry a thousand women I think he would have any trouble at the law.

most any man can marry a thousand women if he is attentive and persisting.

Il women who are not married want to get married. Some are discriminating, the majority are not. The marry-mania never leaves them. From themselves they instinctively know and later taught that their one great act in life is to marry well, and if well, marry anyhow.

Men of brains and physical attractiveness are not the most successful in women. It is the man who is pathetic and attentive. A "good man" can do anything with women.

They charge me with being a "good man" but it is not so. I am a Venetian, have so much freedom in country that they marry as they do without consulting anyone. This Whizhoff seems to be a good-looking man and perhaps became engaged to a woman, then the woman afterwards was married to him. It is the way they did Johann."

BALDY" RYAN BUYS THEATER

St. Louis Man in Combination With Tim Sullivan and Con-sidine of New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 1.—"Our plan is to open a theater in every city of more than 10,000 inhabitants in America," said John J. (Balby) Ryan of St. Louis at the Lyric Theater today in outlining the plans of the International Amusement Co.

"We are going to give the opportunities of the actor," he continued, "but on the other hand our hand will prove a tool to the profession. We now have 10 theaters in the short time we will be able to book our shows for 52 weeks in the year. This big circuit and the new theaters we are opening for tomorrow in all of our houses enables us to cut down the prices at the box offices and there the public will benefit."

Our new theater extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border. It is the plan of the theater to build these theaters in the cities already in existence, and as I go out I have unlimited capital back of me to do things on a grand scale.

We will shortly include Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo, Columbus and all nearby cities of our circuit. Where we can not now go we will go with the help of John no delay. Timothy D. Sullivan, John Conidine and Edward Burke of New York, are trustees, and S. M. Cohen, Portland, Ore., is vice-president. Mr. Conidine, father of the idea, is present.

CHANGED WITH FOUR WIVES

Man Under Arrest in Indiana Accused of Three Marriages in Illinois.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 1.—Accused of having four living wives, Chas. Tuller, alias Reidy, is under arrest here. He was living with Mrs. Nannie Tuller. A woman is expected from Arcola, Ill., to assist in the prosecution.

It is stated that his matrimonial career will begin in Springfield, Ill., where he was born. He has no money. The charge is made that Jane Reid of Springfield became Mrs. Tuller at one time, during the life of Mrs. Hester Tuller.

Tuller is charged with marrying Nannie McGrath in this city in 1901, while living with the seeds of Mrs. Miller, a woman charged with marrying Elizabeth Brown of Sylva, Ill., deserting her and returning to his wife in this city, when he was arrested.

The Passing of Rinkel's Grove.

The large tract of ground, comprising several acres, located on the southwest corner of 11th and Franklin, known as Rinkel's Grove, and which has been, for many years, a landmark in the western part of the city, has been sold to the city of St. Louis by Scott & Co. to be improved, subdivided and sold as city lots. A street will be run through from east to west, known as Rinkel place, and a local place will be opened south from Easton.

WRIGHT IS NOW
TENNIS CHAMPION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 1.—The tennis enthusiasts are still talking of the Beals C. Wright and Hoelcomb Ward struggle for the national championship which Wright won yesterday. "The King is dead! Long live the King!" is the cry of many who saw Ward go gallantly down to defeat after a royal struggle before his partner in doubles, who will be the next holder of the United States championship.

In yesterday's contest Wright's superiority, which for two sets was most marked, and for a greater part of the third well marked, was the feature of the contest.

Both men played strong, resourceful and varied tennis games, the scores of the match reading 6-1, 6-2, 11-9.

Hughey Duffy Will Manage
Philadelphia Nationals
Again Next Year.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—President Sheatsline of the Phillips yesterday secured Manager Hughey Duffy's signature to a 1906 contract. This sets at rest the rumors that Duffy would manage Frank V. Dunn's Boston Nationals next year. The reneged Phillips will be held in high esteem by the addition of some promising minor leaguers. Eight youngsters have been drafted. They include Dunn, now playing right field for the Boston C. I. A. team, a pitcher for and catcher, and an infielder, who it is hoped, will join the club this fall.

KNOX HATS

Showing Fall and Winter Shapes

Isn't it a source of gratification to feel that the hat one wears is the model of style which rules the world of fashions? From its very conception the Knox Hat establishes this precedent.

It is universally recognized and adopted by discriminating dressers and clearly defines correctness as authoritatively conceived, whether for street wear, dress occasions or theatres.

Its numerous shapes for specific use are charming and a helpful and delightful accompaniment to the general attire.

Because she was forced to look upon the body of a man who had committed suicide, Anna Bauer, aged 11 years, living near Cahokia, has filed suit, through her father, George Bauer, in Circuit Court at Belleville, against William Phillips, 30, of that city.

It is alleged that Phillips compelled the girl to look at the body of a man who had committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. Phillips, it is charged, told her the man was her father. The latter learned then that the man was dead.

Phillips, it is stated, was so unnerved that she was taken sick and compelled to remain in bed for six months.

It is alleged that since that time the girl is easily frightened, jumps at every noise and is afraid to be left alone at night.

CHICAGO POLICE

Infusion of New Blood.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—In the most sweeping police order issued from department headquarters in years, Chief Collins last night spread consternation and tremor in the police ranks by a general order that affects 50 commanding and subordinate officials of the department.

While no retirements or dismissals marked the edict, the fact that it applied to so many officials and that no official was taken as indicating that the order was but a precursor of an even greater upheaval.

The order creates two new lieutenants, two desk sergeants and one patrol sergeant and shifts six captains, thirteen lieutenants, twelve sergeants and thirteen patrolmen.

The transfers affect almost every precinct where police activity is shown, and each district headquarters receives an infusion of new blood.

LEITER BOOSTS CURZON

Chicagoan Says Late Viceroy of India Would Make a Good American.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 1.—"If Lord Curzon, your brother-in-law, as well as resigning from the viceroyalty of India gave up all his titles and came to America, what sort of a citizen would he make?" a man asked Joseph Leiter in a recent interview.

"A good citizen—as good a citizen as there ever was," came the quick reply.

"If he came as an immigrant without a cent, he would make a good citizen," Lord Curzon is as they say in England, a man of no funds, and he would succeed here anywhere.

"Do you know anything about the dispute between him and Lord Kitchener?"

"I have no idea," said Leiter.

"I saw Lord Curzon yesterday and he said that the dispute between the civil and military powers in India was as old as British control of India."

Lord Curzon said that the civil arm of that service should be supreme. Kitchener says that the Government and the Legislature of India are military problems. Kitchener won and Curzon quit. That's all.

"Don't you believe that my sister is the best person to judge the situation?"

"That is nonsense. She may be Americanizing him some, getting him around to our democratic view of things, but that is all. The dispute is that one wants to trust the native population, help them to self-government. Kitchener doesn't. I'm no politician."

Stranger Tells Mother of Child
Kidnapped Nine Years Ago,

She's Doing Well.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—There has been a strange sequel to the mysterious kidnapping, nine years ago, of pretty Rose Cohen, an East Side girl.

The girl, now 18, lives in Orchard street and was surprised yesterday by the visit of a man who called the mother to the door, and after telling her he knew the secret of the kidnapping, thrust a recent photograph of the girl into her hands, and with the remark, "She has changed her name; it is time for me to find her, and she has disappeared."

In the winter of 1886 the girl, nearly 5 years old, was playing on the street in front of the Cohen home when a man came to creep up, place his hand over the child's mouth, catch her up in his arms and fled. The police worked on the case for a long time without success. The mother was heartbroken and gave up hope of ever finding her child.

When the man visited Mrs. Cohen yesterday he pleaded with her for knowledge of the girl's whereabouts, but he received no answer.

The police, were at once notified and are inclined to believe that the man, having found the mother, intends demanding a ransom.

Mrs. Mary D. Blair, aged 49, living at 3217 North Newstead avenue, was struck by a Taylor avenue car in front of her home Friday and was seriously injured, so that she is not expected to live.

Mrs. Blair was crossing the street, and had just reached the car track when a northbound Taylor avenue car struck her, knocking her 15 feet, fracturing several ribs, dislocating her right shoulder and inflicting internal injuries. She was carried into her home and physicians summoned. They say her recovery is doubtful.

Motorman John Cook of the car that struck Mrs. Blair says he saw her start across the street, but thought she would stop before reaching the tracks. When she stepped on the track, he says, the car was only five feet distant. He applied the air brake and dropped the fender, but too late to avoid striking her.

Harry Mr. Francis invited Baron Komura to visit St. Louis on his way back to Japan.

Five hundred and fifty visiting merchants and salesmen from other wholesale houses and 75 salesmen of Roberts, Johnson &amp; Rand Shoe Co., each with a lady friend or relative, attended the performance of "King Dodo" by the Delmar opera company at the invitation of Roberts, Johnson &amp; Rand, who had purchased every reserved seat in the house.

A liberal portion of the gate receipts will go to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund.

Harry C. Wood of Roberts, Johnson &amp; Rand decided that the best way to entertain the merchants who are visiting St. Louis in large numbers at present was to take them to Delmar Garden, at the same time aiding the Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund. The result was highly satisfactory.

Delmar Garden looked like the meeting place of a revolution. Badges and buttons were everywhere. Bill posters covered the lattice walls of the pavilion and the operator of the limekiln amused himself by turning it on them. Gus Weinberg on the stage took a hand in the funmaking for the merchants and salesmen by repeated jokes and songs.

After the show the crowd took in the Pike and then dispersed, many finding seats at the tables in the grounds. Every few minutes some one started the yell and immediately from all parts of the garden it was taken up nearly at once. We followed the shouts of "What is the matter with the Free Ice and Pure Milk Fund? It's all right!"

Mrs. Mary D. Blair, aged 49, living at 3217 North Newstead avenue, was struck by a Taylor avenue car in front of her home Friday and was seriously injured, so that she is not expected to live.

Mrs. Blair was crossing the street, and had just reached the car track when a northbound Taylor avenue car struck her, knocking her 15 feet, fracturing several ribs, dislocating her right shoulder and inflicting internal injuries.

She was carried into her home and physicians summoned. They say her recovery is doubtful.

Motorman John Cook of the car that struck Mrs. Blair says he saw her start across the street, but thought she would stop before reaching the tracks. When she stepped on the track, he says, the car was only five feet distant. He applied the air brake and dropped the fender, but too late to avoid striking her.

PRISONER BURGLAR OR A HIGHWAYMAN?

Two Pursue Him and Contend
Over Charge Against Him
After Capture.

CONDUCTOR WAS FLOORED

He Left Car to Walk East and Was Felled and Then Robbed.

Conductor Sam Cox of the Broadway
was on his way home early Friday from the street car men's picnic at Creve Coeur Lake, found no eastbound car at Delmar Garden and started to walk east on Delmar avenue. Four men and two women had left the Creve
Coeur car with him.

As he reached Skinker road Cox was knocked down by a blow from behind.
He does not know what struck him, but when he stood up he found his watch and chain and six were gone. He reported the case at Mounted District Police Station and Policemen Ball and Sipple were sent to the scene.

In their search for traces of the highwayman they went west on Delmar avenue and encountered a man running at top speed, pursued by a night watchman. They arrested the man, and were told by the watchman that he was a burglar who had just broken into a confectionery store at 6690 Delmar avenue.

"No," said the policemen. "He isn't a burglar. He's a highwayman, who has just robbed a man on Skinker road."

A lively argument followed.

"Well," said the private watchman
finally, "I don't care whether you call him a highwayman or a burglar—you just take him to the station, and tomorrow I'll apply for a warrant charging him with robbery."

So the policemen took the man to Mounted District Station. He gave his name as James McKinley, aged 25, and said he recently came from New York.

Surgeons Perform Delicate Op-

Back.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 1.—An operation to remove a portion of Charles Simpson's spinal column was performed
at Bethany Hospital in Kansas City, Kan., yesterday by Dr. C. B. Stemen of Fort Wayne, Ind., chief surgeon for the "Hamburg, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railroad," who is a carpenter, fell from a scaffold at a distance of 30 feet, killing his back at the third and dorsal vertebrae. His body was left behind the wall.

In the operation the third and fourth vertebrae were removed and the al-lum cord laid bare. As soon as the operation was completed the patient exhibited signs of feeling in his legs and the surgeon said that chances for his recovery were good.
He is the second man to have had the operation performed here. Twenty-two surgeons were present at the operation.

GRO HANGED BY A MOB

Attempted to Assault
White Girl Near Roset-
ta, Miss.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 1.—A negro named Joe Bees had stretched hemp by order of Judge Lynch at Rosetta, Miss., a special reward to him.

He attempted to assault the 17-year-old white girl, who was a prominent of 30 miles, so he fled with his arms and escaped.

He was informed the searching party that was formed where Bees was living and the posse succeeded in capturing the fugitive on Fred Leek's place, miles north, where the rope was tight into use.

ARRIMAN TRACES UNCLE

American Capitalist Learns
That Relative Was Killed by Hawaiian King in 1859.

OMAHA, Sept. 1.—While in Honolulu, H. Harriman, the railway magnate, made inquiries regarding one of his relatives, who was shot and killed
by King Kamehameha V.

I was an uncle of Harriman.

He was a man who had expressed himself
anxious to ascertain who had killed him, and told about him.

He is referred to in Hawaiian histories as a man who had expressed the idea that the secretary was in too high favor with the Queen. While under the influence of the drink, he had weakened the mind that he had never the name, and offered to absorb it.

Slayers of Joseph Danby Have Been Arrested.

SALISBURY, Mo., Sept. 1.—The parties accused of killing Joseph Danby last Friday have been re-arrested by the Sheriff and placed in jail.

The postman Danby was here
at the time of the killing, has employed other lawyers to assist the State in prosecuting Mrs. Danby and the others implicated in the killing.

Kansas Justice
Addressed Resignation
to Governor Folk.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 1.—A Justice of the Peace living near Eaton, Jewell County, whose name Gov. Hoch refuses to divulge, has resigned. The resignation was addressed to "Gov.
Folk."

Gov. Hoch said: "Well, there is no doubt but that this resignation should be accepted. A man who thinks Folk is Governor of Kansas is hardly the man for Justice of the Peace."

"One follows the other; without you I wouldn't go there at all."

"And I wouldn't go with you."

"Maria Sergeyeva enough! Don't be so capricious!" "Why do you want to yourself of pleasure simply because you don't want to afford me
any pleasure?"

"But I have said just now and I am repeating it to you—that trip cannot of ford me any pleasure whatever."

"Is it really possible that you do not like picturesque landscapes?"

"No, I do not like them."

"What do you like?"

"I like rage."

"And nothing but rage?"

"Nothing."

I now asked his questions in a jesting
tone, and I replied dryly and abruptly:

"But that isn't true, is it?"

"Yes, and I also like a pleasant unhappi-
nothing else?"

"pody else?"

y Ilyich?"

immediately lowered his arms
a step backward. As I did it such a sudden retreat, I
"wing at the open entrance,
enter now," he ejaculated
"sec, I am no longer an obstacle in your way." The last words were uttered seriously, and I attempted to jest:

"It is only the obstacles on the way
that attract me."

"Be careful, see that you don't stumble," he blurted out, evidently against his will, for he hastened to correct himself as though to make clear his double-meaning warning, adding as he stepped at the stone step near the entrance, "over the threshold."

To wait for a second invitation would have meant to risk being warned again,
and perhaps in a still more offensive way.

I had in still more of the first. So, without saying a single word, I went past Leonov, walked up the staircase, and entering my room, locked
the door behind me.

When I opened it I found myself face to face with Leonov. I hastened to come out to him in the half-dark corridor, slamming the door behind me.

Noticing the impetuous movement with which I closed the door, he remarked,
with vexation:

"Don't be uneasy, I have no intention of ever disturbing you in any way.

Your sister has sent me to you."

"Katya? What for?"

"You'll find it out in a moment . . .
But we can not pass somewhere to the light? I am a toe of 'chair-obscure.'"

Leonov turned toward the staircase, walked down a few steps and, reaching the first stair-head stopped short.

I followed him obediently.

"We can't go down here," he said,
pausing at the window, and, without
waiting for my assent he seated himself on the marble windowsill.

"What for did Katya send you to me?" I asked Leonov, standing before him.

"Yekaterina Sergeyeva has charmed me with the difficult commission to persuade you to go with us to Hish-
huber."

"I have told you already that I will not go—and I have not changed my mind about it."

I cannot sleep. . . . The clock in the corridor struck twelve, and I have not yet closed an eye. I have grown tired of lying in bed without being able to sleep. I rose from my bed and opened the window. . . .

It was Katya that knocked at my door. She came to implore me to go to Hishubler.

"Come! . . . my darling, doveyibis," she folded her hands as if in prayer and was ready to kneel before me.

"I cannot bear these contortions!"
she said with a smile. "Tell me frankly, what bribe did Leonov promise you for securing my consent?"

"Will you go if I tell you?"

"I'll go if I think the game worth the candle."

"You see," began Katya, awkwardly.

"Truly speaking, he did not promise me anything." "We simply made a bet.
If you go with us, we will have to paint my portrait from a photograph and from memory; and if you do not,
I will have to give him your portrait."

"My portrait? . . . And why not yours?" "How foolish of you, Maria!"

"He'll have mine even if he loses the wager, but he wants to win it, do you not?"

I understood very well that the wager
was nothing else than a trap invented
by Leonov—but I was caught nevertheless.

"Why should I hide it? I was very anxious to go to Hish-
huber."

"I followed him obediently.

"We can't go down here," he said,
pausing at the window, and, without
waiting for my assent he seated himself on the marble windowsill.

It was a rather long and difficult trip.

The sun was burning, the road was dusty, and Bobka kept drumming, blowing his horn or yelling at the top of his voice.

"Stop blowing that horn," we would tell him; and he would begin to yell.

"Well, go ahead, blow the horn, but don't yell!" and he would take up his drum.

"But stop drumming!" we would cry
impatiently. And Bobka would break into a wild yell.

"Drum! Drum!" and he would take up his horn.

In a word, I came in Hishubler with my hair disheveled from the wind, my face sunburned, with a terrible buzzing in my ears and with a firm intention never to go out anywhere with other people's children and never to marry so as not to have any of my own. If I go without saying that Hishubler could not make a good impression upon me under such circumstances.

"Look, Maria! How beautiful the mountains are! And that river! And those little houses amidst verdure and flowers!—Aren't they real paradise
neats?"

But these enthusiastic exclamations
of Katya found no echo in me—I looked at everything with dust-covered eyes.

Our landau stopped at the gates of the restaurant, where Yegor Ilyich and Leonov were awaiting us for dinner.

They were seated at the end of a very long veranda, by a table which was set for five.

I did not see Leonov since we parted,
without bidding each other "good-by-
on the stairway, and I felt certain that he would meet me now with an ironical smile, if not with a caustic remark; but he did not say a single word, nor did he lift his eyes when he gave me his hand.

We soon took our seats by the table
in the following order: Katya and I,
with our backs to the wall, and facing the garden; Yegor Ilyich and Leonov seated themselves opposite us. Bobka was seated at the end of the table, between his happy parents. Leonov asked for the menu and began to read aloud
the German names of dishes, translating them into Russian. After thoughtful consideration, saying that "this would be too heavy and that too fat; this I don't like, and that I dare not eat."

Yegor Ilyich selected bouillon with an egg, boiled beef and stewed prunes; Bobka ordered a regular dinner for herself, and Hunnerhacker for Bobka—she never gave Bobka anything but chicken and that only chopped chicken; she was afraid lest he might choke himself with a bone.

"And you?" Leonov at last consented to ask me.

I made no reply to him, but said to the waiter in German:

"Let me have a small trout."

"Two trout," ordered Leonov.

"But," I interrupted him, "I want only one trout."

"And I want the other. What else?"

"Then give me a partridge," I again addressed the waiter.

"Partridge for two," added Leonov.

"Anything else?" he asked me carelessly.

"Nothing. I don't eat any sweets."

"She's afraid of spoiling her teeth,"
explained Yegor Ilyich to Leonov;

"she'll have nothing to bite with."

The dinner ordered, our conversation was rather dull while we waited. Yegor Ilyich and Leonov exchanged a few remarks about the weather, and then fell silent.

While we were eating a dashing young officer came up on the veranda, clanging with his spurs. He had on a blue uniform of an Austrian hussar, in his hand he held a small horsewhip, and a small rose in his mouth.

"What a handsome man!" exclaimed
Katya in English, in a very loud voice, fully confident that no one but I would understand her.

But she made a mistake in her unwary calculation. The hussar heard her flattering remark and understood it.

"He's a real...," she said, "...hussar to her, and came nearer to us with a brisk, resolute step. Seating himself at the adjoining table, he ordered a bottle of wine, in a commanding tone.

"Why don't you take off your gloves?" Leonov suddenly asked me, when he noticed that the knife slipped out of my hand.

"She's afraid to wear off the edge of her nails; she'll have nothing to scratch with!" Yegor Ilyich remarked.

I said nothing and they soon proceeded with their meal.

"Look!" Katya whispered in my ear after a while. "Look!" and she pointed with her eyes at the hussar.

"The hussar was there; there was nothing to look at; she saw the hussar—everything is blended into one impenetrable mass. In the suffocating air
there is no room for breathing—
it is all that is left of the brilliant illumination. Leonov was right. But then, why do I begin from the end?—It is all that I can write from the beginning.

"Look!" and she pointed with her eyes at the hussar.

When I looked at him I noticed that he held a glass of wine in one hand and the menu in the other, lifting now the wine glass, now the menu, with his insolently smiling lips, casting noiseless looks and kisses to Katya.

"Did you see that? Did you?" queried Katya, quivering with emotion.

"We see everything, too!" said Leonov

"Katy, I stared at him open-eyed, in surprise—she sat petrified with fright.

Indeed, we could not understand how it was possible for them to see what was going on behind their backs. And they noticed everything. Leonov's look was contemptuous and sarcastic. Yegor Ilyich's angry and threatening.

"I understand everything; there was a mirror on the wall behind me."

"Kelman, Zalman!" called out the hussar, taking myself off the wall and the opportunity to finish this unbearable dinner, which began with caustic remarks and threatened to end in a scandal. Leonov had to leave the seat!

Maria Sergeyeva had better let me pay for my dinner."

"I have no intention of paying for you; you have to pay for mine."

"No, it is mine; for I have invited you."

Dispatch Tomorrow. (Saturday.)

Did You Know That

In Brazil when an unmarried woman dies the coffin, hearse and livery of the coachman are all scarlet.

In Germany locomotive engineers receive a gold medal and $500 for every 10,000 years of service without accident.

All the real estate signs in the city of San Jose and for five miles around it have been taken down. They were considered disgusting.

The milk of an average cow contains about 4 per cent of cream; nearly 20 per cent of the elephant's milk is cream.
Even buffalo milk is about twice as rich as cow's milk, and the creamiest of all, that of the porpoise, actually holds over 45 per cent of cream, says Knowledge.

The word "sultan" is about the average cost of dinner in the Turkish Sultan's palace. The meal comprises 50 or more dishes daily and the Sultan generally partakes from five or six. Every dish, before it reaches the royal table, is tastefully arranged in the grand style to guard against poison. It is then sealed and taken to the Sultan.

The vast cost of these repasts comes from the fact the guests and retainers
who dine at the Sultan's expense daily
number several thousand.

Five thousand dollars is about the average
cost of dinner in the Turkish Sultan's
palace.

The first issue of Leslie's Monthly, under its new name—American Illustrated Magazine—presents an interesting and varied table of contents. Among the conspicuous features is an illustrated article on "The Story of American Cannery," by Charles H. Coffey, which is the first article of its kind ever published. The magazine contains eight articles with general narrative interest in them, short by Henry E. Webster, Annie Payson Call and others. In other respects Leslie's successor gives promise of a bright future.

But these enthusiastic exclamations
